26 ORDER
27

28 I. INTRODUCTION

This matter comes before the Court on Defendant Fred Meyer Stores's ("Fred Meyer") partial Motion to Dismiss Plaintiff Pilrang Bae Owa's ("Plaintiff") Complaint. Dkt. # 3. Plaintiff opposes the Motion to Dismiss. Dkt. # 8. For the reasons set forth below, the Court GRANTS Fred Meyer's Motion.

II. BACKGROUND

Defendant Advanced Fresh Concepts Franchise Corporation ("AFCFC") leases space on premises owned by Fred Meyer. Dkt. # 3 at Ex. A. On December 20, 2012, Plaintiff, a Korean native who speaks "scant" English, entered into a five-year Franchise Agreement ("Contract") to produce sushi for AFCFC on the leased premises. Dkt. # 1-2 at 5. The Contract states that Plaintiff is an independent contractor of AFCFC and the

1 two are not “partners, joint venturers, principal-agent, employer-employee, or other 2 relationship with each other.” Id. at Ex. A at 27. The Contract provides that Plaintiff will 3 receive a percentage of the sushi sales at the food service counter, as reported by Fred 4 Meyer to AFCFC. Id. at Addendum 1.

5 Plaintiff claims that Defendant’s employees discriminated against, harassed, and 6 bullied Plaintiff while she was operating her franchise. See generally Dkt. # 1-2.
7 Plaintiff lists a series of events which she perceives to be discriminatory. Id. For 8 example, Plaintiff alleges that a male deli employee poured water on her face and another 9 instance where a deli employee sprayed a cleaning solution on her face. Id. at 8; see also, 10 e.g., Dkt # 1-2 at 7-12 (citing additional alleged instances of verbal and physical 11 harassment by Defendants towards Plaintiff.).

12 In April 2016, Plaintiff filed this action. Dkt. # 1-2. Along with her claims for 13 discrimination, she alleges loss of consortium because her husband filed for separation as 14 the result of her work issues. Id. at 8. Additionally, Plaintiff alleges that she was injured 15 in an accident while working and her injury prevented her from completing the terms of 16 her Contract with AFCFC. Id. at 14. Plaintiff further alleges she was constructively 17 discharged because she stopped working after the loss of the use of her hand. Id. at 15.
18 Plaintiff claims she was deprived of twenty months remaining under her Contract. Id.

19 Plaintiff initially filed this action in King County Superior Court. Dkt. ## 1, 2, 3.
20 On August 5, 2015, Fred Meyer removed this action to this Court based on diversity of 21 citizenship. Dkt. # 1. On August 12, 2016, Fred Meyer filed a Motion to Dismiss eight 22 of Plaintiff’s claims. Dkt. # 3. Plaintiff opposed Fred Meyer’s Motion to Dismiss, and 23 Fred Meyer filed a Reply. Dkt. ## 8, 26. In response to Fred Meyer’s Reply, Plaintiff
24 filed a Motion to Strike and for Sanctions. Dkt. # 28. The Court denied Plaintiff’s 25 Motion to Strike and for Sanctions. Dkt. # 65. Additionally, AFCFC filed a Motion to 26 Compel Arbitration, which the Court granted, thereby staying the matter as to AFCFC.
27 Dkt. ## 32, 65.

III. LEGAL STANDARD

Rule 12(b)(6) permits a court to dismiss a complaint for failure to state a claim. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6). The rule requires the court to assume the truth of the complaint's factual allegations and credit all reasonable inferences arising from those allegations. Sanders v. Brown, 504 F.3d 903, 910 (9th Cir. 2007). A court "need not accept as true conclusory allegations that are contradicted by documents referred to in the complaint." Manzarek v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 519 F.3d 1025, 1031 (9th Cir. 2008). The plaintiff must point to factual allegations that "state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face." Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 568 (2007). If the plaintiff succeeds, the complaint avoids dismissal if there is "any set of facts consistent with the allegations in the complaint" that would entitle the plaintiff to relief. Id. at 563; Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 679 (2009).

A court typically cannot consider evidence beyond the four corners of the complaint, although it may rely on a document to which the complaint refers if the document is central to the party's claims and its authenticity is not in question. Marder v. Lopez, 450 F.3d 445, 448 (9th Cir. 2006). A court may also consider evidence subject to judicial notice. United States v. Ritchie, 342 F.3d 903, 908 (9th Cir. 2003).

IV. DISCUSSION

Plaintiff alleges nine causes of action in her Complaint: (1) violations of the Washington Law Against Discrimination (WLAD); (2) negligent supervision of Defendant's agents; (3) premises negligence via res ipsa loquitur; (4) premises negligence via common law; (5) premises negligence per se under the Occupational Safety and Health Act (O.S.H.A.); (6) intentional infliction of emotional distress; (7) loss of consortium; (8) tortious interference with business expectancy; and (9) public policy tort. Dkt. # 1-2.

Fred Meyer seeks dismissal of the claims for violation of the WLAD; loss of consortium; tortious interference with business expectancy; and public policy tort for 1 failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted. Dkt. # 3.

2 A. Violation of the WLAD

3 Plaintiff's WLAD claim includes five sub-parts: (1) retaliation (2) failure to 4 provide a reasonable accommodation, (3) race-based harassment, (4) unlawful 5 discrimination, and (5) discrimination by association. Id. Fred Meyer moves to dismiss 6 these claims, in part, because Fred Meyer asserts that Plaintiff was not its employee. Dkt.
 7 ## 3, 26. Fred Meyer argues that there is no legal basis for "extending the WLAD's 8 employment protections to a person, like Plaintiff, who has neither an employment nor a 9 contractual relationship with a defendant." Dkt. # 26 at 2.

10 1. Retaliation, Failure to Provide a Reasonable Accommodation, and Race-Based 11 Harassment

12 Plaintiff's claims for retaliation, failure to provide reasonable accommodation, and 13 race-based harassment are similar in that they require an employee-employer 14 relationship. See RCW 49.60.210 ("[i]t is an unfair practice for any employer. . . to 15 retaliate.) (emphasis added); RCW 49.60.180 ("[i]t is an unfair practice for any 16 employer[]. . .") (emphasis added); see also Malo v. Alaska Trawl Fisheries, Inc., 92 17 Wash. App. 927, 965 (1998) (confirming that the term "or other person" is restricted by 18 the words "employer," "employment agency," and "labor union.").¹ As such, the Court 19 will analyze these claims together.

20 Plaintiff argues she was "engaged as an 'employee' in an 'employee-employer 21 relationship' on behalf of the Defendants under Washington's 'payroll method' test." 22 Dkt. # 1-2 at 5. Plaintiff cites to Sedlacek v. Hillis, 104 Wash. App. 1, 3 (2000), rev'd on 23 other grounds, 145 Wash. 2d 379 (2001), which explains that under the payroll method, 24 an individual's name on the employer's payroll for a particular period will ordinarily

25
 26 ¹ Instead of identifying the specific provisions, Plaintiff cites generally to the WLAD for these 27 three claims. See Dkt. # 1-2. The Court construes Plaintiff's retaliation claim under RCW 28 49.60.210, her claim for failure to provide a reasonable accommodation under RCW 49.60.180, and her claim for race-based harassment under RCW 49.60.180.

1 demonstrate an employment relationship. Id. For support, Plaintiff attaches two exhibits.
 2 Dkt. # 1-2 at 5. First, Plaintiff attaches “Sushi Merchandising Standards,” which outlines 3 the policies and procedures required as a deli manager. Id. at Ex. 1. This exhibit does 4 not show Plaintiff’s name on Fred Meyer’s payroll. Second, Plaintiff attaches “Statement 5 re: Net Remittance,” which appears to be a document issued to Plaintiff by AFCFC to 6 account for sushi sales, insurance costs, and produce supplies. Id. at Ex. 22. This exhibit 7 also does not demonstrate that Plaintiff was on Fred Meyer’s payroll. Thus, neither of 8 these exhibits establishes that Plaintiff was on Fred Meyer’s payroll.

9 According to the Complaint, the only employment related contract that exists in 10 this case is between Plaintiff and AFCFC. The language of that contract explicitly states 11 that the parties “shall be independent contractors and not . . . employer-employee.” Dkt.
 12 # 3 at Ex. A. The Contract, to which Fred Meyer is not a signatory, plainly rejects the 13 notion that Plaintiff is an employee of AFCFC. Id. If Plaintiff is not an employee of 14 AFCFC, then she is not an employee of Fred Meyer. Upon finding that no such 15 employer-employee relationship exists between Fred Meyer and Plaintiff, the Court 16 DISMISSES with prejudice Plaintiff’s claims for retaliation, failure to provide 17 reasonable accommodation, and race-based harassment.

18 2. Unlawful Discrimination Under RCW 49.60.030(1)

19 Plaintiff asserts a claim for unlawful race, national origin, and gender 20 discrimination. Dkt. # 1-2 at 15. Fred Meyer moves to dismiss this claim, arguing that 21 Plaintiff was not an employee of Fred Meyer and is therefore not protected by RCW 22 49.60.030. Dkt. # 3 at 6. However, unlike RCW 49.60.210 and RCW 49.60.180, 23 discussed above, RCW 49.60.030 is not limited to employer-employee relationships. See 24 Marquis v. City of Spokane, 130 Wash. 2d 97, 113(1996) (holding “the broad recognition 25 of rights contained in RCW 49.60.030(1) includes the right of an independent contractor 26 to be free of discrimination based on sex, race, national origin, religion, or disability in 27 the making or performing of a contract for personal services.”).

1 Although no employer-employee relationship is necessary for a claim under RCW 2 49.60.030(1), some kind of contractual relationship generally must exist. For example, in 3 Marquis v. City of Spokane, the court “liberally construed” RCW 49.60.030(1), but the 4 plaintiff in that case nevertheless had a contract with the defendant. 130 Wash. 2d at 97.
 5 Here, Plaintiff does not allege that any kind of contractual relationship existed between 6 her and the Fred Meyer. Indeed, the Contract was between Plaintiff and AFCFC; Fred 7 Meyer was not a signatory to the Contract. See Dkt # 3 at Ex. A. Accordingly, Plaintiff 8 did not properly plead a claim under RCW 49.60.030(1), and the Court DIMISSES with 9 prejudice Plaintiff’s claim for unlawful discrimination.

10 3. Discrimination by Association

11 Plaintiff asserts a claim for discrimination by association under the WLAD.² Dkt.
 12 # 1-2 at 17. However, discrimination by association claims are not recognized in 13 Washington. Dkt. # 3 at 11; Sedlacek v. Hillis, 145 Wash. 2d 379, 392 (2001) (finding 14 “the Legislature has not extended the WLAD to include a prohibition against association 15 discrimination.”). Therefore, the Court DIMISSES with prejudice Plaintiff’s claim for 16 discrimination by association.

17 B. Loss of Consortium

18 Plaintiff asserts a claim for loss of consortium. Dkt. # 1-2 at 3. Plaintiff alleges 19 that, due to Fred Meyer’s conduct, (1) her husband filed for divorce, and (2) her husband 20 had a “stroke caused by the mental and physical harm of Plaintiff directly and 21 proximately caused by the Defendants.” Id. Plaintiff claims she lost the benefit of her 22 husband’s affection and services as a result of Fred Meyer’s conduct. Id. Fred Meyer 23 moves to dismiss this claim, arguing that Plaintiff’s own alleged injury (i.e., separation 24 from her husband) is not a proper basis for a loss of consortium claim. Dkt. # 3 at 12.

25 Under Washington law, a loss of consortium claim is brought by a “deprived”

26
 27 ² In support of this claim, Plaintiff cites to WAC 162-16-150. However, WAC 162-16-150 was 28 repealed in 1999. The Court reminds counsel to be diligent and to cite valid authority.

1 spouse who suffers the loss of affection and services from an “impaired” spouse.
 2 Reichelt v. Johns-Manville Corp., 107 Wash. 2d 761, 733 (1987). The Restatement 3 (Second) of Torts, which Washington courts recognize, defines the “deprived” spouse as 4 the one who suffers loss of services and society and the “impaired” spouse as the spouse 5 who suffers bodily injury. See id.; Restatement (Second) of Torts § 693 (1977) (“The 6 spouse, whether husband or wife, who suffered the bodily harm as a result of the tortious 7 conduct of the defendant is identified as the impaired spouse. The other spouse, who 8 brings the action for loss of services and society, is identified as the deprived spouse.”).
 9 Damages for loss of consortium are proper when a spouse suffers loss of affection and 10 services due to a tort committed against the impaired spouse. Burchfiel v. Boeing Corp., 11 149 Wash. App. 468, 494 (2009).

12 Here, Plaintiff alleges she is the impaired spouse—purportedly injured by Fred 13 Meyer—and she also claims she is the deprived spouse—deprived of her husband’s 14 affection and services after he filed for divorce. Dkt. # 1-2 at 3. But Plaintiff fails to 15 identify any legal authority supporting her assertion that she has a claim as both the 16 deprived and the impaired spouse. If Plaintiff is the impaired spouse, which is what she 17 asserts, then she is not the proper party to bring this claim. Instead, Plaintiff’s husband 18 would be the proper party to bring a claim for loss of consortium against Fred Meyer, but 19 he is not a party. Id. To allow Plaintiff to move forward with her claim as pled would 20 run contrary to the purpose of the tort, which is to permit relief to the deprived spouse 21 who has been harmed by the suffering of the impaired spouse. As such, the Court 22 DISMISSES without prejudice Plaintiff’s improperly pled claim for loss of consortium.

23 C. Tortious Interference with Business Expectancy

24 Plaintiff claims she had an expectation of twenty more months of economic 25 benefit under her Contract with AFCFC until Defendants, “with improper purpose, 26 intentionally terminated her contract.” Dkt. # 1-2 at 23. Fred Meyer moves to dismiss 27 this claim, arguing that Plaintiff alleges contradictory facts in her Complaint. Dkt. # 3 at 13.

1 In order to succeed on a claim for tortious interference with business expectancy, a 2 plaintiff must satisfy the following five elements: (1) the existence of a valid contractual 3 relationship or business expectancy; (2) defendants had knowledge of that relationship; 4 (3) an intentional interference inducing or causing a breach or termination of the 5 relationship or expectancy; (4) defendants interfered for an improper purpose or used 6 improper means; and (5) resultant damage. Leingang v. Pierce Cty. Med. Bureau, Inc., 7 131 Wash. 2d 133, 157 (1997).

8 Plaintiff satisfies the first and second element of this claim. As an initial matter, a 9 valid contractual relationship existed between Plaintiff and AFCFC. See Dkt. # 3 at Ex.
 10 A. According to the Contract, gross sales of the sushi franchise were reported and 11 received by Fred Meyer; therefore, it is likely that Fred Meyer had knowledge of the 12 relationship between Plaintiff and AFCFC. Id.

13 However, Plaintiff's Complaint contains no facts suggesting Fred Meyer acted 14 with an improper purpose or used improper means to interfere with Plaintiff's business 15 expectancy. Instead, Plaintiff's Complaint states that after her injury, Plaintiff continued 16 to work for nearly six months. Dkt. # 1-2 at 14. At some point, the injury became too 17 painful and Plaintiff hired a "helper at her own expense to keep her contract in force." Id.
 18 Three months later, Plaintiff and her hired helper were "man-handled" off the premises 19 by employer AFCFC.³ Id. at 15. Plaintiff does not plead facts that show Fred Meyer 20 interfered with her business expectancy, nor does she plead facts as to why she and the 21 hired helper were escorted off the premises. It is not clear from the Complaint what role 22 Fred Meyer played in Plaintiff's removal from the premises.
 23

24 For these reasons, the Court DISMISSES without prejudice Plaintiff's claim for 25

 26 ³ In her Complaint, Plaintiff alleges that "[o]n April 26, 2016, at the behest of Defendant Fred 27 Meyer's executive management team and its Store Supervisor Jeremy (Doe), joint venture 28 partner/joint employer AFCFC abruptly appeared with security personnel man-handled Ms. Owa and her Korean Helper off the premises." Dkt. # 1-2 at 15.

1 tortious interference with business expectancy.

2 D. Wrongful Termination in Violation of Public Policy

3 Plaintiff claims she was constructively discharged in order to avoid 4 accommodating her alleged disability. Dkt. # 1-2 at 24. She further claims that Fred 5 Meyer created an “ongoing and persuasive harassment-based-work-environment,” which 6 violates public policy. Id. In other words, Plaintiff asserts a claim for wrongful 7 discharge. Id. Fred Meyer moves to dismiss this claim, denying that it terminated 8 Plaintiff or created an atmosphere where Plaintiff felt compelled to resign. Dkt. # 3 at 14.

9 In order to succeed on a claim for wrongful termination, a plaintiff must prove (1) 10 the existence of a clear public policy; (2) that discouraging the conduct in which they 11 engaged would jeopardize the public policy; and (3) that the public-policy-linked conduct 12 caused the dismissal. Gardner v. Loomis Armored Inc., 128 Wash. 2d 931, 941 (1996).
13 Once a plaintiff satisfies these three elements, the burden shifts to the defendant to show 14 whether there is an overriding justification for the dismissal. Id. at 936.

15 Plaintiff has not satisfied the third element of this claim because she failed to plead 16 a causal link between a clear public policy and her purported dismissal. Plaintiff alleges 17 she hurt her hand and could no longer work. Dkt. # 1-2 at 15. She also alleges that, 18 many months after she stopped working, she was escorted off the premises. Id. But 19 Plaintiff does not provide any facts suggesting that she was terminated because of her 20 hand injury or because Fred Meyer was discriminating against her. Although the Court 21 will assume the truth of Plaintiff’s Complaint, as well as credit all reasonable inferences 22 arising from the Complaint, Plaintiff must point to factual allegations that satisfy each 23 element of a claim in order to avoid dismissal. See Havens v. C & D Plastics, Inc., 124 24 Wash. 2d 158, 176 (1994) (stating that in order to satisfy the causal element, Plaintiff 25 must “present sufficient evidence of a nexus” between her discharge and alleged public 26 policy violations). In this case, Plaintiff appears to ask the Court to make extraordinary 27 leaps by accepting conclusory allegations with respect to the causal element of her claim.

1 Plaintiff has not pleaded sufficient facts for her claim, and the Court DISMISSES
2 without prejudice Plaintiff's claim for wrongful termination.

3 V. CONCLUSION

4 For the reasons stated above, the Court GRANTS Fred Meyer's Motion to 5 Dismiss. Plaintiff's WLAD claims for (1) retaliation, (2) failure to provide a reasonable 6 accommodation, (3) race-based harassment, (4) unlawful discrimination, and (5) 7 discrimination by association are DISMISSED with prejudice. Plaintiff's claims for (1) 8 loss of consortium, (2) tortious interference with business expectancy, and (3) wrongful 9 termination in violation of public policy are DISMISSED without prejudice.
